Early Planting Helps State's Soybean Crop

By Bonnie A. Coblenz
MSU Extension Service

Most of the state's soybean crop has a very good yield potential despite some challenges coming late in the season.

Trent Irby, soybean specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, said growers planted more than 60 percent of the crop in April.

"We had more soybeans planted in April than we've had in years," Irby said. "We had several windows that month where it was warmer than usual and dry enough to plant, and growers took advantage of those planting opportunities."

This early planting date is an advantage on many acres, as the crop has the potential to avoid times when it is vulnerable to certain diseases and insect pests common at this time of year.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated that 90 percent of the crop was blooming and 76 percent was setting pods by July 23. Those figures are well ahead of the five-year average, and the overall crop condition is rated as 70 percent fair or good and 22 percent excellent.

Irby said disease pressure has been manageable to this point in the year, although growers are concerned about target spot, which was a problem in 2016.

"So far, disease issues haven't been out of the norm in Mississippi," Irby said. "A lot of that is environment-dependent. We had a lot of rain and lower than normal temperatures in June, but disease pressures remained relatively light during that period.

Producers planted much of Mississippi's soybean crop early, allowing it to avoid many late-season threats from diseases and insects. July has been much warmer with more scattered rains, but we still need to pay close attention for any disease development moving forward, particularly on the later planted part of the crop."

Angus Catchot, Extension entomologist, said Mississippi soybean growers are dealing with two insects, but which pest is a problem depends on when the crop was planted.

"Corn earworms or bollworms are a problem now in later planted soybeans, and redbanded stinkbugs are a problem in earlier planted soybeans, mostly in the southern part of the state," Catchot said.

Most of the state's soybeans were planted early and will miss the bollworm problem. Later planted soybeans in the Delta are flowering and are susceptible to this pest, but Catchot said growers have bollworms under control.

Redbanded stinkbugs are an other issue.

"Redbanded stinkbugs are a lot more difficult to control and more damaging than our traditional stinkbugs," he said. "Particularly south of Highway 82, we have a lot of redbanded stinkbugs in our system that are being treated."

When the early-planted soybeans mature and begin to dry down, late-planted soybeans are among the only green plants left on cropland.

"I'm anticipating we'll have a lot more pressure from redbanded stinkbugs then," Catchot said. "We need to make sure we're on top of scouting for these pests in the coming weeks."

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Discover the Versatility of Soy

*****

Mango Banana Soy Smoothie

- 1 cup vanilla soymilk
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 cup mango chunks, frozen
- 1 banana, sliced
- 2 tablespoons soy protein powder
- 1/4 cup ice cubes
- 1 teaspoon honey, optional

Puree all ingredients in blender until smooth. Serve immediately.

Whole Grain Hot Pepper Corn Muffins

- 1 cup yellow corn meal
- 1 cup white whole-wheat flour
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup plain soymilk or dairy milk
- 1/3 cup soybean oil (commonly labeled vegetable oil)
- 1 large egg, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon red pepper flakes

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Grease 10 muffin cups or 10 small paper baking molds. Combine cornmeal, flour, sugar, baking powder and salt in large bowl. Whisk soymilk, soybean oil and egg in small bowl. Pour into cornmeal mixture and stir until just blended. Stir in red pepper flakes. Spoon batter into prepared muffin cups or paper liners filling 1/2 full. Bake for 18 to 22 minutes until toothpick inserted into center comes out clean.

Crisp Root Vegetable Chips

- 6 cups soybean oil (for deep frying)
- 1 pound Yukon gold potatoes, peeled
- 1 pound purple potatoes, peeled
- 1 medium sweet potato, peeled
- 4 medium beets, peeled
- 1 teaspoon sea salt

Preheat soybean oil to 360 degrees F in heavy frying pan or small deep fryer. Slice root vegetables into very thin rounds, less than 1/8 inch thick, using a hand slicer or mandolin. Separate vegetable slices into individual portions. Fry vegetables in small batches, one to two minutes per batch, turning as needed until just crisp. Cooking times will vary depending on size and type of vegetable. Drain in single layer on paper towels; sprinkle with sea salt. Cool completely before serving or storing.

Soy and Spinach Artichoke Dip

- 1 pound silken tofu, crumbled
- 1 pound low-fat cream cheese, cubed
- 1 cup low-fat mayonnaise
- 1/2 teaspoon ground pepper
- 1 pound frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
- 1 pound marinated artichoke hearts, drained, coarsely chopped
- 1/2 cup green onions, chopped
- 1 tablespoon soy cheese, grated, for garnish (optional)

Beat tofu until smooth; mix in cream cheese, mayonnaise and pepper in mixer bowl. Fold in spinach, artichokes and green onions. Divide mixture equally into 12 (4 ounce) au gratin dishes. Sprinkle soy cheese on top, if desired. Bake at 350 degrees F for 15 to 20 minutes or until bubbly and browned on top. Tip: Serve with low-carb crackers or bread for an all-around low-carb snack!

Super Soy and Ancient Grain Salad

- 2 tablespoons soybean oil
- 2 lemons, juiced and zested
- 2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 3 cups cooked quinoa, cooled
- 2 cups shelled edamame, cooked according to package directions
- 1 cup fresh blueberries
- 1 cucumber, peeled, seeded and cut into 1/4 -inch cubes
- 1/2 cup red onion, diced
- 1/2 cup fresh basil, thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup fresh mint, thinly sliced
- 2 ripe avocados, peeled, pitted and sliced

Whisk soybean oil, lemon juice and zest, and mustard in a small bowl until smooth; set aside. Combine quinoa, edamame, blueberries, cucumber, avocado, basil, mint, and red onion in medium serving bowl. Pour soybean oil lemon mixture over salad, tossing lightly, until combined. Season salad with salt and pepper, and top with avocado slices. Serve immediately.

The Mississippi Timber Price Report (MTPR) is a quarterly survey of stumpage timber prices in Mississippi. It is developed to provide a picture of timber market activity. The state average prices for common forest products are listed. Values given are offered as a guide to help individuals assess the fair market value of their timber. The average price should not be applied as the exact value for a particular tract. This report is updated quarterly and available at MSUCares.com/forestry, or by contacting your local county Extension office.

Summer Citrus Growth Brings Autumn Harvest

By Dr. Gary R. Bachman
MSU Extension Service

Although we're in the middle of a blazing hot summer, I find my gardening thoughts wandering to the coming fall season. You may think you know why I'm looking forward to the cooler weather, but the main reason is that the citrus in my home grove will start to ripen.

While August is too early to think about harvesting fruit, it is time to start thinking about planting your own citrus. You can plant citrus in the ground or, my preferred method, in containers.

I've written before about the various citrus trees that I've tried to grow in the past. I've told of being unable to resist a key lime I saw in the garden center, but it didn't survive the "brutal" coastal Mississippi winter. I've tried growing the eerily fascinating Buddha's hand citron, but it also didn't make it past winter.

I've finally learned to grow citrus that is hardy for my garden with minimal cold protection. I've settled on three consistent performers: satsuma orange, Meyer lemon and kumquat.

Satsuma oranges are related to mandarins and are winter favorites because they are easy to peel. I'm always astonished at the number of oranges that will be set on my satsuma trees. My first year growing this citrus, there were so many flowers on my little tree I went ahead and removed about half because if they all had produced a fruit, the tree would have snapped. As it was, my little tree had 13 oranges that almost bent the trunk to the ground.

I enjoy growing and caring for Meyer lemons, which are not like the tart, thick-skinned grocery store offerings. This fruit -- long-overlooked in the culinary world -- is a cross between a lemon and an orange, making it thin-skinned and really sweet. Each year, my crop is destined for a batch of homemade limoncello, which is a holiday family treat.

The citrus crop I'm most excited about are the kumquats. These fruits are produced in astonishing numbers; because of the number of flowers, my trees are buzzing with what seems like hundreds of native bumblebees. The number of kumquats developing would seem to cause a structural problem for the trees as they ripen, but it'll be OK. Due to their small size, the weight will not threaten the tree.

Kumquats don't need to be peeled, as the rind is completely edible. I have two varieties; one is sweet, and the other is a little tart. Kumquats are perhaps the most cold tolerant of the citruses, extending the northern range for home gardeners.

Citrus must be protected from the cold. Citrus trees are grafted, and the graft union is susceptible to freeze damage. I planted all my citrus trees in 25-gallon containers so I could move them to the garage for protection. However, the containers weigh too much to actually move. My mistake. So, I constructed removable conduit frames from which I hang frost blankets on the coldest nights.

If you want more information about growing citrus, especially in containers, get Mississippi State University Extension Service Publication 2542, "Growing Citrus in Containers in Mississippi." This is an excellent guide for gardening success with citrus in your landscape. Find it at <http://extension.msstate.edu/sites/default/files/publications/publications/p2542.pdf>.

For now, I'll just have to be satisfied with the visions of homemade limoncello while I wait out the rest of the summer in air conditioning.

Delta Marks National Rice Month With Annual Luncheon

By Susan M. Collins-Smith
MSU Extension Service

Delta area residents and chefs will show off the versatility of rice -- one of Mississippi's four major row crops -- during the 27th annual Rice Tasting Luncheon.

The event, which celebrates National Rice Month, draws more than 1,000 people from the state, the region and other countries. As the top rice-producing county in Mississippi, Bolivar County has the honor of hosting the luncheon every year.

It begins at 11 a.m. and concludes at 1 p.m. on September 15 at the Delta State University Walter Sillers

Coliseum in Cleveland.

More than 300 different rice dishes will be available for tasting. Attendees also will receive goody bags, view various exhibits and enter for a chance to win door prizes.

The luncheon is hosted by Delta Rice Promotions Inc. and sponsored by the Mississippi State University Extension Service, Farm Bureau and area businesses and organizations.

Admission is $5 per person. Tickets can be purchased at the door or in advance from Farm Bureau offices or from MSU Extension offices in the Delta. For more information, call the Extension office in Bolivar County at 662-843-8371.
